I'm a civic-minded Front-End Developer and thinker, angling to design beautiful, accessible code that fills gaps. I have a well-rounded background that allows me to solve problems dynamically, creatively, and empathetically by drawing from varied skills and experiences; this includes excellent written and verbal communication and the ability to adapt quickly. Self-improvement and growth are imperative to me; with that, I bring my highest quality work to every team. With my recent career pivot into tech, I'm eager to begin contributing to projects that have a tangible impact on someone's day-to-day, and continue growing my skills as a developer.
